Student Party wins by 133

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The Student Party president and vice president candidates emerged as the winners of the Undergraduate Student Government election Thursday.

The Student Party team of Jack Sullivan and Tony Svach were announced as the winning candidates by the election commission at 12:25 a.m.

Bill Hall won the student trustee election.

Rochelle Goree, election commissioner, said more than 2,270 students voted in the election. The Student Party received 839 votes, followed by the Reform Party with 706 votes. The United Party trailed with 524 votes.

Goree said 10 percent of the student body voted in the election. She said the turnout was average for student elections.

Sullivan, a junior in political science, and Svach, a sophomore in foreign language and international trade, campaigned with a platform of creating a student advisory position on Carbondale City Council and having teacher evaluations available for reference in Morris Library.

Other planks on the Student Party platform include improving campus-wide recycling programs, expanding the Landlord Tenant Union and establishing an office in the Student Center for student groups that want office space and access to a computer.

Sullivan had said the Student Party platform was realistic and within the bounds of student government responsibility.

"Some of these ideas are so simple to execute, but they haven't been," Sullivan said. "If you lead by example, others will follow."

President and vice president candidates for the Reform Party were Michael Parker and April Ronchetti.

President and vice president candidates for the United Party were Derrick Faulkner and Dwight Gunn.

Rocket blown up; loss at $100 million

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — An Atlas-Centaur rocket was blown up by remote control Thursday, apparently after only one of its two second-stage engines ignited, destroying a Japanese satellite in a $100 million disaster for America's infant commercial space program.

The 144-foot liquid-fueled rocket's three first-stage engines roared to life at 6:30 p.m. CDT — 16 minutes late because of high winds — majestically pushing the unmanned booster away from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

About 4 minutes and 45 seconds after liftoff, the Atlas first stage burned out and separated as planned. The two Centaur second-stage engines then were commanded to fire to continue the ascent, but only one of the Pratt & Whitney RL-10A engines appeared to ignite.

"Every indication is only one Centaur engine started," said launch engineer Skip Mackey. "We appear to be tumbling, based upon the guidance (data). We're going ... we appear to be out of control at this time."

A few moments later Mackey reported: "All data is gone at this time."

An Air Force spokesman said later that ground controllers radioed self-destruct commands to the tumbling Centaur 6 minutes after liftoff, destroying the General Dynamics Corp. rocket and its satellite payload to make sure no large pieces of debris fell into shipping lanes.

Allen Lovelace, chairman of General Dynamic Corp.'s Commercial Launch Services Inc., said an outside panel of experts had been formed to review the mishap.

President orders rail workers to end strike, return to work

United Press International

President Bush signed legislation early Thursday ordering some 200,000 striking rail employees back to work, ending a one-day walkout that threatened to sidetrack the nation's economic recovery.

Pickets began coming down shortly after Bush signed the measure just after midnight CDT in the residential quarters of the White House.

But some lines had not restored full service Thursday morning because the bill signed by Bush did not end the walkout in time for crews to get all the equipment back into normal operation.

In the Baltimore area, only one-third of the MARC commuter lines were operational.

Chicago & North Western spokesman Kevin Busath said operations will not return to normal immediately.

"It took all day to close down operations yesterday and it will

City looking for civic center funds

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Before breaking ground for a civic center, the Carbondale Civic Center Authority Board must find a solid foundation.

In a meeting of the board and other city officials Thursday, all agreed to try to obtain funds for the center by asking for donations from foundations interested in the project.

Jeanne Foster, president of Carbondale Uptown Incorporated, said she was concerned because many foundations are located in the northern part of the state and may not express an interest in Carbondale.

"Some how we should find a way to (have a civic center)," Foster said. "To let the momentum go would be a mistake."

Carbondale was one of 16 cities asking the state to help build or expand its civic center and other community projects.

But Gov. Jim Edgar announced Feb. 25 he would stop funding to civic centers around the state because the state needs to fund programs such as road repairs and waste-water treatment projects.

Carbondale asked the state for a grant for $3 million of the $4.6 million needed to build the civic center. The city would have paid the difference.

Secretary/Treasurer Steve Hoffer presented the board with another funding possibility. Funding could come because of a

Coal strike brings steel industry to near standstill

MOSCOW (UPI) — The 7-week-old coal strike by miners seeking Mikhail Gorbachev's resignation brought the steel industry to a near halt Thursday, and the miners demanded the Soviet president discuss their political demands or face catastrophe, the Tass agency said.

In mounting labor discontent, airport meteorologists announced plans for a nationwide strike April 29 if their demands for higher salaries are not met negotiations, said the Russian Information Agency, wire service of the Russian Federation.

"On April 29 the work of practically all the airports of the country may be hindered because weather forecasters, who keep the civil aviation functioning, plan a strike for that day," the Russian Information Agency said.

Salukis hope to surprise Shockers

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Before the season started, Saluki baseball fans were thinking this weekend would determine the Missouri Valley Conference title. It still could, but not the way they expected.

Wichita State comes to SIUC for a four-game series beginning today, but the Shockers are the only one of the two teams that have a shot at the Valley crown.

The Salukis are 1-11 in the conference and have dropped their last 10 MVC games, including sweeps by Bradley and Creighton.

The Dawgs will try to snap the conference losing streak with some success against the No. 7 team in the nation in Wichita State, which owns an 8-2 MVC record.

Actions begins at 3 p.m. today at Abe Martin Field with a single game. A doubleheader is slated to begin at 1 p.m. Saturday and another single game is scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday.

Baseball team treasures help from Hill Gang

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

For the SIUC baseball team it is the quality of fans, not the quantity, that matters to them.

While some of its opponents draw thousands of fans, the Salukis have the notorious Hill Gang behind them at Abe Martin Field. And this weekend the Dawgs will need the support of the Hill Gang like never before as they meet Wichita State, which is ranked No. 7 in the country.

Described by some coaches as obnoxious, a disgrace and downright rude, the Hill Gang has played a key role in the success of Saluki baseball since Abe Martin Field was built in 1964.

Softball squad travels north for Gateway games

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC softball team will get back into the swing of things today and Saturday when it plays its first game in 10 days.

After being rained out April 13 and 14 in the Mizzou Invitational, the last game the Salukis played was against sister school SIU-Edwardsville April 9. The Salukis beat the Lady Cougars 9-2 and 5-2.

The team will face two Gateway Conference foes when it meets with the University of North Iowa at 3 p.m. today and Drake University at noon Saturday.

Saluki coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said the team is not worrying about the fact that it hasn't played an actual game in many days and it has been focusing on getting the most from each practice.

"We're disappointed rain kept us from playing last weekend and we are eager to get back into our conference schedule," Bretchelsbauer said. "From here on out, we'll have conference doubleheaders each weekend. Every Gateway team we play will turn it up a notch and we need to do the same."

The first time Northern Iowa played SIUC, they met with defeat. SIUC downed the Panthers 11-7 March 23 in the Saluki Invitational and if the Salukis win today, it will tie the series at 13.

The Salukis know too well not to underestimate the Panthers. Last year Northern Iowa upset the entire conference by winning the Gateway Tournament after coming in seeded ninth in the 10-team field.

SIUC has won six straight games against Drake and leads in the series 14-2, only losing in the 1988 season.

"All week we have been trying to stay sharp at practices," Bretchelsbauer said. "We have been playing more scrimmage games to keep up our defenses. But this is not a young team, the players know what they have to do to win."

Even though the Salukis haven't played in a while, they continue to move up in the national statistics.

SIUC is No. 4 in win-loss percentage (.893 with a 25-3 record), No. 5 in batting (.324, up one notch since last week) and No. 4 in runs (175, up three notches).

The team was not ranked in the April 10th NCAA Softball Poll, but Bretchelsbauer said the team must not worry about rankings. All it must do is try to win.

"I believe we played well enough to be ranked in the Top 20," Bretchelsbauer said. "But we can't get too hung up on that. We need to keep our minds on what we're doing and just play each game at a time. If we keep playing good softball, good things will happen."

Men's tennis team finally gets to play home match

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team may finally get a chance to play at home.

The Salukis are scheduled to face the Illinois State Redbirds Saturday at the University Tennis Courts at 11:00 a.m. The quadrangular match that was to be held last weekend at SIUC was a rainout.

Illinois State comes into the match 10-9 overall, while the Dawgs are 8-10. However, SIUC has the edge over the Redbirds' top singles players, Saluki head coach Dick LeFevre said.

"(ISU No. 2 player) James Mercer is a good player, but we've managed to beat him every time we meet," LeFevre said. "Bennie Van Zyl hasn't beaten anybody on our team. They have some good people, but we should win."

The Salukis are coming in to the toughest section of their schedule. SIUC has upcoming matches with Missouri Valley Conference foes Wichita State, Indiana State, Tulsa and Southwest Missouri State.

Newcomer Southwest Missouri became the conference favorite when former front-runner Drake's No. 4 player suffered a torn achilles tendon. That forces Drake to move up less talented players to face better competition. Other schools LeFevre tabbed as contenders for the Valley title are Wichita State and Indiana State. He said SIUC has an outside shot to win.

"If we win the title," LeFevre said, "it would have to be considered a pretty big upset. There are a lot of good players in this conference."

The Salukis' hottest player is senior No. 1 player Joe Demeterco. He is now 18-9, but five of his nine losses have come against nationally-ranked players. LeFevre said Demeterco has to be considered the No. 1 seed at the upcoming tournament.

"Joe is facing a tough match next week against Amine Baustani of Southwest Missouri," LeFevre said. "It would be a good win for Demeterco because Baustani has beaten Kansas's No. 1 player."

Two women, 13 men to compete in SIU bodybuilding competition

By Jeff Pavlu
Staff Writer

Two SIUC women have plenty of iron in their diet.

Denise Charveron, a senior in health care management from Decatur, and Jennifer Cobb, a junior in food and nutrition from Orland Park, are the sole competitors in the Ms. SIU Bodybuilding Competition.

This competition, as well as the Mr. SIU competition, both sponsored by the Weightlifting Club, will take place today in Shryock Auditorium. Pre-judging begins at 2 p.m. and the evening show at 7 p.m.

Charveron, who was a Saluki cheerleader for three years, said getting into bodybuilding was a direct result of being too skinny.

"I started lifting at the Recreation Center my freshman year to try and gain some weight," she said. "I never got serious, though, because my free time was spent cheerleading."

"I liked the changes it made to my body, and I needed a rest from cheering. It seemed I have the right body type for the sport, and I was working hard in the gym, so I figured why not do it for a reason."

Charveron said her competitive nature also helped her to make the decision to start training for this contest in August of last year.

She began dieting to remove excess fat from her body Feb. 22, and since then has been spending 3 1/2 to 4 hours in the gym every day, while at the same time cutting calories in her high-protein, high-carbohydrate, low-fat diet.

"I use a three-days-on, one-day-off program, but I sometimes even than men. There is also one misconception that drives me crazy—if you stop working out your muscles will not turn to fat."

This year, the contest will be drug-tested for steroids for the first time.

Charveron said it is a very positive move because she believes in being natural, and it is a smaller accomplishment if a person wins on steroids.

Cobb started lifting weights her freshman year also, but her background lies in gymnastics, which she did for eight years.

"When I came to SIUC, I wanted to work out, so I just started doing it on my own," Cobb said. "After three months of not really knowing how to do it, I started dating a guy who knows everything about bodybuilding, Randy Dawson."

"Randy told me I had good genetics and eventually convinced me to get into it competitively."

Cobb has been working out ever since, and took second place in this contest last year.

Between last year and this year, work out on my day off," Charveron said.

She said she wishes more women would realize what the sport can do for them.

"It seems you can count the girls in the weight room on one hand," Charveron said. "For some girls, it's a big deal just to go in there, but I think many girls would like to, they just don't."

"If they did, they would find out that they will only get toned and not really muscular because it's harder for women to put on muscle

U.S. soldiers saying farewell to Saudi sands, flying home

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — The blue-and-white banner in the steamy tent read: "Operation Desert Farewell — Welcome to America's Finest." Below, Sgt. Jeff Thorn, 24, of Benson, N.C., along with hundreds of fellow soldiers, served his final hours in the Persian Gulf region Thursday by sitting on plywood benches as he waited anxiously for a long flight home. "It's over," sighed Thorn. "We're finally getting out of here." As of Thursday, the U.S. half of the 540,000 American troops who served in Operation Desert Storm had returned home.

Leaders meet to end violence in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — President Frederik de Klerk called Thursday for a meeting of government and anti-apartheid leaders where they would take joint responsibility for ending the black factional bloodletting. De Klerk also said the government would soon establish a standing commission of inquiry to investigate the ongoing conflict, try to identify culprits and seek methods of preventing the fighting, which is undermining negotiations to end white-minority rule in South Africa. He also hinted at increased police action to quell the fighting.

Bush vows to learn how to operate computer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush disclosed Thursday that he doesn't know how to operate a computer and he's going to "begin study" next week to learn how. Midway through a speech unveiling a new national education strategy, Bush inserted the announcement that he would be among the first to sign on to the broad goals of reinvigorating the educational process. "To prove no one's ever too old to learn," Bush said, he took the advice of his new education secretary, Lamar Alexander, who "convinced me to become a student again, myself."

Automakers: Rail strike causes minor effects

DETROIT (UPI) — The nation's automakers reported Thursday only minor ripple effects from the one-day rail strike, although production at some assembly plants could still be curtailed this week because of parts shortages. "Everybody's running as scheduled, but we are still scrambling a little bit to make sure we have parts," GM spokeswoman Karen Longridge said. "Right now we're okay at all our assembly and components operations." GM, the nation's largest automaker, is a heavy user of rail shipments across the country.

CIPS forced to pay refunds; company may appeal ruling

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Central Illinois Public Service Co. said Thursday it might appeal a recent decision by the state's utility regulatory agency that would force the company to pay refunds to more than 30,000 customers. The Illinois Commerce Commission issued an interim order Wednesday that unanimously rejected the utility's request to avoid paying the overcharge refunds. Now, the commission can move ahead with an earlier proceeding to determine the amount of money CIPS might have over-collected from ratepayers.

Amtrak defends passenger policy during strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Amtrak officials Thursday defended their handling of passengers stranded in Chicago by a nationwide rail strike, especially in the case of a Seattle woman caught by the strike on her way home from New York. Amtrak spokeswoman Deborah Hare said 274 passengers were helped with alternate transportation. "We offered to every passenger who came into Chicago on a train, or bus who was connecting to another train, we booked them onto an alternate form of transportation," Hare said. "We took their rail ticket and we bought them either a bus or airline ticket with the exception of 30 people."

McLeod Theater presents Mozart's comic opera

By Jeff Pavlu
Staff Writer

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart will take a ride on the Mississippi River tonight at McLeod Theater.

The ride is actually an opera by Mozart called "The Abduction From the Seraglio."

The comic opera is a story about a man trying to get the woman he loves back after she has been kidnapped by the gambler who owns The Seraglio riverboat.

The SIUC production isn't in traditional opera style because it has been translated into English, and the action is advanced by dialogue instead of song. Characters only break into song to express some strong emotion, and one character doesn't sing at all.

The performance also is unique because the opera originally was set in Turkey, but has been changed to a riverboat on the Mississippi.

Alex Chrestopoulos, director of the opera, said when Mozart wrote it in the 18th century, people were obsessed with Turkish style.

"He was simply using the most popular ideas at the time so the opera would be a success," Chrestopoulos said. "This is also where the word 'seraglio' comes from—it is Turkish for 'harem.'"

"Of course, Turkey is no longer interesting, so we reset it on the Mississippi in the 1850s, and The Seraglio became a riverboat."

The riverboat the audience will see is 30 feet long and about 17 feet tall, and all of the action takes place on, in, or around it. Its paddle-wheel really turns, and smoke comes out of its stacks.

Scenic artist Adonis Mohtar said the crew has been working on the boat since around March 4.

"I didn't do much of the actual construction, but I painted it, and it took me three weeks of non-stop painting to do it," he said.

Mohtar also painted the mural and the Opera goes on despite pre-show glitches

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

The stage is set, the actors are ready for their cue.

The orchestra is warming up in the pit. A lone male tenor runs through practice scales.

All chaotic noise is silenced. There is a nervous energy left in the air as if lightning could suddenly form.

Before the house lights are dimmed a last minute note from the pit is shouted up to the director: "Guess what? — and not waiting for a reply, answers, "The bass player smashed three fingers," while holding up three fingers like he's playing bass to illustrate the problem. "We'll try to find a replacement," he mumbles.

After low grumbling from the middle seats of McLeod Theater, the stage manager calls for the dress rehearsal to begin.

Smashed fingers, a lead singer with laryngitis, half the orchestra giving a concert elsewhere, prop smoke setting off a smoke alarm, and a million other things seem to go wrong during dress rehearsals. But that's what rehearsals are for, right?—To work out all the bugs.

Everything must be perfect opening night. In big towns the opener makes or breaks the play.

All lines must be recited with appropriate emotions, every note must be in tune, all props must be in place or these glitches will be very much detectable and distracting to the audience.

Sitting through Wednesday's dress rehearsal of "The Abduction From the Seraglio," was like watching a comedy of errors. Although the play is a comic

GTE should address elderly in proposal

WHILE GTE'S PROPOSAL to charge Carbondale residents for local calls would save most people money, the company also needs to address a special group of customers—the elderly.

GTE announced Monday its proposal to the Illinois Commerce Commission that 18 state communities, including Carbondale, should pay for local calls under the Usage Sensitive Service.

Under this plan, approximately 65 percent of GTE customers are expected to save money, because the company also would reduce monthly service charges by nearly $4.50.

IN OTHER WORDS, CUSTOMERS with less than this amount in local calls will save money, even if they only save a few dollars.

A GTE area manager said the phone company is proposing such measures because GTE may be losing its monopoly for local service in Southern Illinois. When competition arrives, GTE wants to be as cost-efficient as possible.

But they'll need to address senior citizens in a different manner if they want to persuade these customers to stay.

The elderly generally have lower incomes compared to other age groups. These incomes also are fixed to a large degree.

ANY COST INCREASE TO THEIR phone bills can have adverse effects on their personal budgets.

Under GTE's proposal, most customers will save money if their phone calls remain low in length and number.

But senior citizens at times must rely just on their phones as the principal means for "getting out and about" in Carbondale.

Those who are restricted or limited to their households, then, may face a cost increase they cannot afford.

Therefore, the ICC may want to consider special provisions for those customers who fit in this category.

IT COULD REQUEST THAT GTE include customer information cards along with upcoming phone bills that senior citizens with low income could fill out to request special conditions.

Qualifying customers could have their monthly service charges reduced by an additional amount to take into account their reliance on telephones.

Such a move would help ensure GTE that these customers would not switch to other companies.

More importantly, customers potentially needing help would receive it.

Letters

Writer ignorant of SPA activities

I am writing a rebuttal against Patrick Schaefer's letter on April 15, which attacked the integrity of the Student Peace Alliance.

He stated, quite ignorantly, that SPA does not stand by their beliefs because they wouldn't stand out in the rain for the New World Carnival the last two Thursdays in a row.

Apparently you did not notice the signs on the corner of Illinois and Grand every Wednesday, rain or shine, from the beginning of the war till the end.

You do not remember marches and speeches given on days of rainy 20 degree weather. Some of SPA's members, including myself, went so far as to be arrested, face going to jail, and having it on our record for the rest of our lives. I guess you've been living in a dream and just woke up.

We were at the Free Forum Area until noon, but the rain was ruining all of our props so we closed shop. What was the use of standing there and having one person every 20 minutes stop by and ask "What is all this mess here for anyway and when is that preacher going to show up?"

We are trying to present our ideas in a cohesive fashion, not as lunatics shouting in the rain. I admit, SPA is having a hard time, we lost, the war won and killed thousands of innocent Iraqi civilians.

Support in and around campus for peace is a minority. I am not Mahatma Gandhi, that takes a bit more courage than I have right now.

You can deceive yourself though I believe people will take us seriously because we are serious.

It is easy for someone like Mr. Schaefer to criticize because he doesn't stand up for anything, he only puts down, but it is idiotic for him to attempt humiliating SPA, which he knows nothing about.

Mr. Schaefer, get your head out of those history books and look around at reality for a change.—John T. Vigil, sophomore, environmental engineering.

Brother Jim too self-righteous

I would like to commend Hendrick Bruyns for his kind letter describing a true Christian.

He said everything I have wanted to say since I first encountered Jim Gilles.

However, my mind was so clouded by anger that I could organize my thoughts so well on paper.

Mr. Gilles was, in my opinion, as self-righteous as the church leaders who wanted so much to have Jesus crucified.

Many may remember the story about the church leader who prayed with his eyes to Heaven saying, "Thank you God, for making me your good and powerful servant."

This seems to be Gilles' attitude. On the other end of the temple a humble man beat his chest, bowed his head and begged God for forgiveness. Who was the truly penitent man?

A man who denies his sinful desires can never ask forgiveness, and is therefore the one who is in need of great spiritual direction. I believe that God gave each of us a conscience which gives us a gut reaction to everything we do.

If we truly love the lord Jesus, we will listen to the "little white angel on our shoulder" in order to please Christ.

Finally, I want to close by reminding everyone of the Bible verse John 3:16. "For God so loved the world, he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

That means that if you are truly sorry for your sins and live your life for God, then you will be saved.—Sandra Hamann, freshman, visual communications.

Quotable Quotes

"They're not doing anything. They say 'You're on your own lady.'"—Amtrak passenger Barbara Honey said about her experiences Wednesday in Chicago concerning the rail strike.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Acceptance of offensive language indication of 'intellectual laziness' another perspective.

Mike and Eric try to bolster their case by pointing out the importance of preserving the freedom of speech, yet in the paragraph before that they denounce the preoccupation with individualism (one of the primary rationales behind protecting the freedom of speech.)

This argument is a red herring anyway as I don't advocate censorship. If someone intentionally wants to exclude women from an idea or condition they are explaining, I probably should respect their opinion.

What I object to is the unthinking use of exclusionary gender specific language.

Because these words do offend people and reinforce patriarchal stereotypes, they should only be used when they are reflecting the intent of the speaker.

In short, when Eric and Mike argue for "Get(ting) with it" and not worrying about unnecessary offensive language, they are not defending the freedom of speech, just intellectual laziness.—Christopher Carey, senior, political science and communication.

Salukis go for gold in Olympics

SIUC grads have chance for second Olympic games

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Many Olympic athletes have humble beginnings, hailing from SIUC's own ranks.

Two athletes finally made it. Striving for success at SIUC, they came from the Recreation Center's track to Seoul, South Korea and competed in the 1988 Olympic Games.

Sally Zack, a 1985 graduate and member of SIUC's cross country team, made the US Cycling Team. Zack placed 16th in the individual roadrace.

Connie Price-Smith, a 1985 graduate and member of the SIUC women's basketball and track and field teams, went to Seoul to compete in the shot-put and discus throw.

Price-Smith had only one year of experience on the track and field team, playing basketball for four years until her eligibility was exhausted. Since the '88 games, Price-Smith has become a national champion several times over and is now ranked No.1 in the nation in the shot put and No. 2 in the discus.

"I don't think there is anybody better than Connie in the nation," women's track and field coach Don DeNoon said. "The US will take three people for its team and Connie, unless she injures herself, is a shoo-in for the 1992 Olympics."

Zack, whose career as a Saluki was hampered by injuries, ran cross country at SIUC from 1983 to 1985 and was a walk-on for the gymnastic team for two years prior to that. She finally found her niche in cycling prior to making the 1988 Olympic Team.

Currently Zack is riding for the Shaklee-Ritchey Cycling Team and has won several national and international honors, including finishing 11th in the Tour de France.

"Since the 1988 games she has been competing for real," Price-Smith DeNoon said. "I think she has a definite opportunity to make the 1992 team. She has always possessed excellent talent, but due to her injuries, her potential at SIUC was never realized."

"I think we helped her progress. She left SIUC knowing what it takes to become an accomplished athlete."

Zack, who now resides in Boulder, Colo., said the Olympics are an important part of competition, but she doesn't want to overemphasize their importance.

"I have raced in many competitions and it means a lot to participate in them," Zack said. "And when I raced in the Olympics, it was just one of many races I raced in."

Zack said the 1988 games were one of the most thrilling competitions and she remembers feeling awed by the huge stadium and the opening ceremonies.

"During the opening ceremonies I saw Connie (Price-Smith) and we took pictures of each other," Zack said. "It was the only time I saw her, but it gave me energy. It felt great to know there were two of us from SIUC and we were supporting each other."

Zack A few days before her Olympic trials, Zack heard the news that Price-Smith had made the US team in two events and she said it gave her confidence throughout her trials.

"We were on the track team together at SIUC and we graduated together," Zack said. "It gave me such an unexplainable feeling of energy."

Zack said she owes much of her success to DeNoon.

"Coach DeNoon always gave me

Track stars have different backgrounds but same hopes

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Saluki men's track standouts Ed Williams and Darrin Plab come from backgrounds as different as night and day, but the goal the pair are striving for couldn't be any more similar.

Williams, a 110-meter hurdler and Plab, a high jumper, are both looking to make the United States Olympic team in either 1992 or 1996.

Williams has already shown his credentials by qualifying for the NCAA Championships, posting a time of 13.82 earlier this season. He said despite needing about a 13.4 or 13.5 to make the Olympic team, he feels he is definitely capable of those blazing times.

"If there is good competition and I'm healthy and the conditions are right," Williams said, "I believe I could run in that area."

Likewise, Plab has jumped as high as 7-foot-6 and 1/2 inches this season. He said if jumps in that area during the outdoor season or this summer, an invitation to the Olympic Trials could soon follow.

But their current athletic success and matching Olympic dreams are about where the duo end as far as any similarities.

Williams grew up in the tough Chicago suburb of East Chicago Heights, where the grade schools didn't even have hurdles for him to use. As a youngster he used to go in the yard with his uncles who would set up saw horses for him to use as mock hurdles. He would see great hurdlers such as Renaldo Neamiah on television. Even at such a young age, Williams dreamed of the Olympics.

Plab, on the other hand came from the other end of the spectrum, the small town of Mascoutah. Unlike Williams, track wasn't even a thought in his mind during his childhood. Baseball and basketball were his first loves. Plab said he never cared for track or really watched it on TV. He decided to go out for track as a sophomore in high school just to get a letter. But then his prowess as a jumper began to emerge.

"I never liked track as a kid," Plab said. "I just happened to get into it. I'm really lucky to be here at all."

Their coach, Bill Cornell, said Plab and Williams are very much alike in their work habits. This is coming from an expert, Cornell was on his way to running the mile for England's Olympic team in 1964, before he was sidelined with a foot operation.

"If they can see the light at the end of the tunnel, it should motivate them to work hard to get there," Cornell said. "They are both

SIUC swimmers could make splash at games in Spain

By Eric Bugger

Next year Olympic teams will head to Barcelona for the 1992 Games and several SIUC swimmers and divers could cause a big splash in the medal races.

Several SIUC swimmers and divers have made their mark at the Olympic Games and Saluki coach Doug Ingram said several more could be on the team going to Barcelona next year.

Saluki junior Tonia Mahaira probably has the best chance of anyone to represent her country in the Games. A native of Crete, Greece, she holds the Greece national records in the 100 and 200 meter freestyle events.

Mahaira qualified for Greece's Olympic Team in 1988, but the country elected not to take a women's swimming team that year. Mahaira hopes that will not be the case in 1992.

Ingram is confident Mahaira will make the Greece team and is optimistic about her chances to score.

Another Olympic hopeful from SIUC is senior Chris Gally, a three-event All-American this year. He will compete in the 100 butterfly in the Olympic Trials in March.

"Chris is one of the elite athletes in the nation in that event," Ingram said, "and it's just a matter of which two on that given day next March will be the two that are the best and they will be on the Olympic team."

Just getting to the trials in the 100 butterfly is a major accomplishment for Gally. He could swim against gold-medalists Matt

Senior Chris Gally, SIUC swimmer, practices the butterfly stroke at practice earlier this week. Gally will compete in the World University games in England and possibly train for the Olympic Trials.

Biondi, Tom Jager and possibly Mark Spitz if he continues his comeback at the age of 41. But Gally said those swimmers are no different than he is.

"They put their trunks on one leg at a time, just like I do," Gally said. "Their goggles slip off their eyes just like mine do."

A problem Gally will face even before the trials is the decision to continue training or not. Gally graduates in May and will compete in the World University Games this summer in England. If he continues to train for the Olympic Trials, it will be primarily on his own. He said for now he is taking it one meet at a time and will decide on the Olympic Trials when the time comes.

On the diving board, SIUC could be represented by freshman Rob Siracusano. Dave Ardrey, Saluki diving coach, said Siracusano has a legitimate chance of qualifying for the Trials, but his best shot is in 1996 because of his young age.

Junior All-American Deryl Leubner qualified for the Olympic Trials in the 50 freestyle and is just fractions of a second away from making the 100 freestyle qualifying time.

With the SIUC women's swimming and these aforementioned accidents weren't a part of the plot. The orchestra (what few strings there were) was playing, the curtain was raised and on the stage stood a life-sized reproduction of a steamboat. The actors, who proceeded to physically turn the boat, like condiments on a lazy Susan, suddenly hit a snag.

The stairs, which were to be hooked up to the side hadn't caught and proceeded to hit the scenery with a loud "rip." The orchestra, unaware of the problem, continued to play and dropped out one by one.

The entire cast and crew sucked in a breath in preparation of what wrath the director might blow their way. Instead of blowing up, the director walked outside the theater. The cast knew what they had done, and what must be done to prevent it from happening again.

And if it should happen on opening night, the show will have to go on, the actors and actresses will improvise, hoping the audience won't realize the problem.

Minor problems occur before the opening night performance, directors turn into one-eyed monsters with nasty dispositions and with good reason, the director's name, none-the-less his reputation, is at stake.

On opening night everything, or almost everything, will run smoothly. The audience will applaud, make comments on the music, the action, the singing and the sets, and go home.

Sure the actors and actresses deserve their spot in the limelight, and rightly so. This opera is outstanding and so are the players, but the only reason the play runs like a well-oiled machine is because of the countless many who never will have their names printed in the program credits.

Students, volunteers, teachers, and many others who had a hand in everything from set production to clean-up after the play's run, juggle time between jobs, classes and play duties.

The hours cast, light crew, sound crew, set crew, costumers, musicians, stage-hands, stand-in's, and box-office personnel spend working are invaluable. Plays will fall flat without their help.

As the curtain rises on opening night, the time for catching and correcting errors is over. The cast prepares to fulfill the awaiting expectations of the crowd. The behind-the-scenes people are once again, back behind the scenes.

The well-oiled machine is on the roll.

"This is clearly a disappointing event for us, but also for our customer," Lovelace said at a news conference. "Clearly, we will go through a systematic and careful failure investigation."

The loss marked a major setback for General Dynamics, which has been aggressively attempting to carve out a niche in the commercial launch industry, which is dominated by the European Ariane rocket.

The early moments of the flight appeared normal, and the rocket was 243 miles miles from the launch site, out of view and well out of Earth's discernible atmosphere, when the failure occurred.

Television closeups showed the rocket explode in a starburst pattern, apparently after the self-destruct commands were issued. Debris was spotted in the ocean as much as 900 miles away, Air Force officials said.

Destroyed along with the rocket was Japan Broadcasting Corp.'s BS-3H communications satellite, a direct broadcast television relay station built by GE Astro-Space Division of Princeton, N.J. The satellite was being launched to replace a similar spacecraft destroyed last year in a European rocket failure.

The rocket is made up of a 73-foot-long Atlas first stage booster and a 30-foot-long hydrogen-fueled Centaur second stage.

The flight marked only the second commercial launch of an Atlas-Centaur in 70 flights of the workhorse booster.

new bill introduced in the Illinois House of Representatives that would amend the Metropolitan Civic Center Support Act.

If passed as introduced, it would allow the Civic Center Authority Board to apply for a no-interest loan to be paid within 15 years, he said.

"We still can't afford it," Hoffner said. "There is a big difference between being given $3 million and having to pay $3 million. The city is not in a position to subsidize the civic center."

Other possibilities presented included scaling down the project to make it more affordable.

Existing buildings also were looked at for the location of the civic center, but none could be found that would save money.

The original plan was to connect the civic center to a new city hall. It would have been located on the corner of Illinois Avenue and Walnut Street and would have included several meeting rooms and an auditorium.

Hoffner said he wants the civic center to be built as it was originally planned.

"When we start scaling back, we start losing revenues," he said.

The meeting rooms would be rented to organizations and could be applied to the cost of the building.

Mayer Neil Dillard said he thinks Carbondale can find a way to have the civic center.

"I think this is just a temporary roadblock," he said. "I think we can overcome it. It might be a year. It might be three years. But it is temporary."

The next meeting of the board will be 1:30 p.m. June 12 at City Hall. The board is expected to have a list of possible foundations that might be willing to help with the project or present other ways of funding.

The Reform and United Party have the option of appealing the election results.

The Student Party received one strike against it April 8 after the commission found it did not have a sufficient number of signatures on its petition from students living in the Thompson Point housing area.

A strike is a series of reprimands against a party for campaign violations. After eight strikes a party is taken off the ballot.

The other two parties can appeal the election commission's decision to allow the Student Party to remain on the ballot after the petition violation.

Faulkner said there may be some legitimate complaints about the election, but he did not feel they were worth tying up student government over.

"It's time to move on and get USG going," Faulkner said.

Parker was not available for comment.

Hall won the student trustee election with 809 votes, Richard Fasano followed with 766 votes and Darnell Wheeler trailed with 587.

The student trustee election may be disputed because polling places in Trueblood Hall, Kesnar Hall and Lantz Hall ran out of student trustee ballots.

Student election workers provided 35 voters with makeshift ballots which were officially counted.

All ballots were counted by hand and should be recounted today.

Because of this shortage, student trustee candidates may appeal the election results.

Wheeler said he would consider appealing the results if the numbers did not match or seemed unfair.

"When students come out, they should have ballots to vote on," Wheeler said.

Fasano said as close as the election was, he would not be surprised if one or two candidates called for another student trustee election.

Gorbachev was elected president in March 1990 by the Congress of People's Deputies, while rival Boris Yeltsin, chairman of the Russian Federation, plans to face his voters on June 12 in a presidential election.

A poll published Thursday in Moskovsky Komsomolets newspaper showed support for Gorbachev plummeting, dropping from 51 percent approval in October to 34 percent in April.

It is said 2,500 Moscow residents were questioned and the highest approval rating went to Yeltsin — 73 percent in October and 70 percent in April.

As Gorbachev began his third day of a visit to Japan, the first ever there by a Soviet leader, labor discontent bubbled at home.

Language Day attracts students

By Chyrese Wolf
Staff Writer

About 1,200 students from 40 high schools participated Thursday in Foreign Language Day at SIUC.

The event, hosted by the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, was Thursday in the Student Center Ballrooms from 9:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

Charles Speck, professor of foreign languages and literature, said the purpose of the day is to "give students a chance to compete."

Speck said, the scholar bowl was the major event of the day.

It is "much like the scholar bowl on WSU-TV," he said.

Students were expected to take foreign language sentences and translate them into English sentences, he said.

Students participating in the event are in Spanish, French, German, and Latin classes in high school.

"The students really want to win. Both students and teachers take the event very seriously," Speck said. "Competition is very heated."

SIUC faculty also made presentations during the day; on such subjects as Latin Bingo, Japanese Tea ceremony, German folk songs, mini-language lessons in Japanese and Russian, and a geography lesson on Russia.

The event is growing so rapidly, the department is having a hard time staffing the event, Speck said.

Proposal to turn over loan control to schools

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The U.S. Education Department has proposed giving universities greater control over federally-funded student loans in an attempt to curb rising default rates.

The proposal suggests making universities responsible for allocating and collecting federal student loans.

Dianna King, SIUC Financial Affairs coordinator of public relations, said if approved the proposal would affect the University more than students.

"The University would have to shoulder the burden of taking on an extra responsibility," she said.

The University's financial aid staff would need to be enlarged to process the loans and keep track of students who have graduated.

King said loan processing could take longer if universities are not provided with resources, such as personnel, to handle the extra work.

King said if the proposal is passed the federal government would appropriate a set amount of financial aid funding for each university.

"I guess they feel universities keep closer contact with their students than the department can," King said.

By the end of 1991 there is expected to be more than $55 billion in outstanding loans and $2.7 billion in loan defaults. The overall default rate is about 17 percent.

SIUC has a default rate of 6.6 percent, King said.

Only the guaranteed student loans, which include the Stafford Loan, the Supplemental Loan for Students and the Parent Loan for Undergraduate Students, would be affected by this proposal.

Marisa Dubose, service representative for the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, said proposals to change the federal student loan process are not unusual.

"It's very common to try to come up with new ideas to help the program run more effectively," Dubose said.

Making universities responsible for allocating and collecting student loans is just one of the alternatives mentioned in a departmental report released April 4.

Another proposal would eliminate schools that have default rates higher than 35 percent.

olio, which are the backdrop and the show curtain the audience sees during intermissions and before the show.

SIUC stage craft, lighting, and costume classes also donated time on the set.

Music for the opera will be provided by a live orchestra directed by Dan Phillips, from the School of Music.

Jeanine Wagner, director of the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theater and lead character in the opera, said the music is central to the opera.

"Also, right now we are in a time when the director of the opera's more in charge, and Alex Chrestopoulos' concept of the riverboat is very unique," she said.

The opera runs April 19, 20, 26, 27 at 8 p.m., and April 28 at 2 p.m.

Tickets are $8 or $3 for SIUC students with I.D.s. For more information, call the McLeod Theater box office at 453-3001.

War reporters coming to SIUC

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

Combat journalists from USA Today, the Chicago Tribune and the Associated Press will discuss their experiences in covering the Persian Gulf War at a conference Saturday.

Larry Jolidan, one of the three speakers, is a reporter for USA Today. He was a war correspondent for the paper during the Gulf War and was in the Persian Gulf for seven months.

Stephen Franklin was the Middle East correspondent for the Chicago Tribune. He was on assignment during the Gulf War and was sent to Kuwait City on the day of its liberation.

Jim Wilson is bureau chief for the Associated Press in Chicago. He has been with AP for 24 years, and covered the war as a bureau chief out of Detroit.

The conference will include presentations by each of the featured guests and roundtable discussions.

The event is sponsored by the SIUC student chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists and the School of Journalism. It is a part of Journalism Week. All proceeds from the conference will go to the Journalists Committee to Free Terry Anderson.

Robert Spellman, professor of journalism and faculty adviser for SPJ, said the speakers will discuss war coverage in-depth as well as present practical knowledge of covering foreign affairs.

"It is commendable that SPJ is holding an event that is educational for both students and faculty,"

Spellman said, "and raising funds to keep Terry Anderson's captivity on the public agenda."

Marlo Millikin, SPJ vice president, said she feels the conference will benefit students when they enter the professional field.

"Because of the gulf situation and other conflicts going on throughout the world, it is very possible that we will be covering war and foreign conflicts in the near future," she said. "They will give us valuable information from their experiences."

The conference will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Student Center, in the auditorium and Old Main room. Registration will take place between 9 and 10 a.m. in front of the second floor auditorium.

confidence," Zack said. "He was the onewho helped me through it all. And without my current sponsor (Shaklee-Ritchey), I probably wouldn't even be going out for the 1992 Olympics."

Zack said she does not plan on going to the Olympics but she certainly hopes she will make the team again. And until the trials, which are six to seven weeks before the games in July of 1992, she does plan to continue training.

One Olympic hopeful, who is also an assistant coach for the women's track and field team, is Kathleen Raske. In her career as a Saluki, Raske was a NCAA National finalist in indoor track and a NCAA All-American in outdoor track.

"Kathleen certainly has the skills to make it to the Olympics," DeNoon said. These two athletes along with Raske hope to travel to Barcelona, Spain to compete in the 1992 Olympic Games.

Three other Saluki athletes who have or hope to compete in the Olympic Games are Carlon Blackman, Christiana Phillippou and Crystalla Constantinou.

"I think we'll see several make the Olympic Trials," Ingram said, "but that's just the first step. It's a whole quantum leap from there to make it to the Olympic team. We're probably not right there yet. But that's the same thing as three years ago we didn't have anyone qualify for the NCAAAs and now we do."

Ingram is confident juniors Julie Hosier and Nancy Schmidtkofer will swim fast enough before the trials to qualify. Hosier represented SIUC in the NCAA Championship finals and could represent the SIU in the Olympic 100 butterfly.

dedicated athletes. They are the kind who show up a little bit early to practice and leave a little bit late."

While both athletes were a bit wary of talking to far ahead as far as their chances for Olympic stardom, neither hesitated a bit about future plans.

"I'm definitely shooting for the Olympics in 1992," Plab said. "It's real important to me to get there either then or in 1996. You know, to improve an inch is a cinch, but a yard is hard."

Williams echoed Plab's statement on trying to get to the Olympics in either 1992 or 1996, but added that he has no plans on stopping short of his dream.

Symposium held to generate higher education involvement

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

If students and faculty have questions about the future of higher education, a symposium at the Student Center Auditorium Friday will provide answers.

James E. Sullivan, president of the Illinois Education Association-National Education Association, said the symposium "Where do we go from here?" will provide a public forum to discuss affirmative action, the 1992 fiscal budget and other critical issues that affect higher education and SIU.

"It's a device to generate involvement," he said, explaining it will get students and faculty more involved in higher education decisions.

Other speakers include Christine Maitland, NEA higher education coordinator, who will examine "A National View of Higher Education," and Paul Sultan, SIUE

Department of Management professor, who will discuss "Castles on Quicksand: the Economic Destiny of Higher Education."

Jim Nagle, higher education specialist for IEA-NEA, will speak on "Values and Higher Education."

A panel discussion at 3 p.m. will concentrate on the future of higher education.

Panelist include Gary Kolb, former president of SIUC's IEA-NEA, state Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, Hans Rudnick, head of the Graduate Council, former University president Albert Somit and Donna Falvo, professor of rehabilitation.

Sullivan said one subject of the panel will be Gov. Jim Edgar's fiscal year 1992 budget proposal, recently approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

He said the panel will discuss how the University could deal with the budget and how much internal reallocation the University could allow.

He said the symposium will give students an opportunity to ask questions.

Virginia O'Leary, an Indiana attorney, will begin the symposium at 9 a.m. with a speech on "Legal and Moral Obligations of Affirmative Action."

Kolb said in a memo the focus of the panel will be substance rather than strategic planning for the University.

Sullivan said Friday is the first time the SIUC Faculty Association and IEA-NEA have sponsored a symposium.

"It's the first of what we hope will be an annual symposium on issues facing higher education and the SIU system," he said.

The symposium is free and open to the public.

"We want to get as many students, staff members and faculty there as possible," he said.

Reggae band to jam out Springfest; Dallol played with Marley's band

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

A little slice of Ethiopia will come to Carbondale Saturday when the African reggae band Dallol takes the main stage at Springfest.

Dallol, whose six members are natives of Ethiopia, plays a danceable Afro-reggae mix that is more uptempo and percussive than straight reggae music, said percussionist Asrat Selassie.

The band, which played with Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers on the "One Bright Day" album, will perform at 2:30 p.m. Saturday on the main stage of Springfest, the SIU Arena parking lot off Douglas Drive.

Selassie said Dallol plays "music to rock the body and trigger the mind," which has made the band popular in the Chicago area for more than ten years.

"We're one of the premier bands that started reggae in Chicago," he said.

Selassie said reggae music has stayed popular because of the support of college radio stations.

John Berry, graduate student with University Programming, said he invited Dallol to play Springfest because they sound good, have a lot of experience and are reasonably priced.

"If people want to dance, that's fine, but there will be plenty of room for people who just want to listen," he said.

The Caribbean band I-Lites will open the main stage at noon, and the alternative rock band Too Much Joy will follow Dallol.

A lot of campus rapes start here.

Whenever there's drinking or drugs, things can get out of hand. So it's no surprise that many campus rapes involve alcohol.

But you should know that under any circumstances, sex without the other person's consent is considered rape. A felony, punishable by prison. And drinking is no excuse.

That's why, when you party, it's good to know what your limits are. You see, a little sobering thought now can save you from a big problem later.

CTC honors academic scholars

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

More than 200 students from SIUC's College of Technical Careers have been honored for outstanding academic achievement.

Of those 200, 84 received monetary awards or scholarships in recognition of their achievements, said Leigh Tiebout, a CTC assistant professor and chairwoman of the CTC Honors Council.

CTC departments award scholarships on the basis of academic success and financial need. Students are sometimes nominated for scholarship consideration by their professors.

Gary Weiss, a senior in advanced technical studies from Herrin, won the Delyte W. Morris Memorial Scholarship of $500.

Weiss said his selection for the award probably was the result of maintaining his career grade point average of 4.0.

Juliana Taylor, a senior in consumer economics and family management from Mahomet, received the $200 Advanced Technical Studies Scholarship through her department.

Taylor said being nominated by her professors and awarded the prize was a good payoff for her efforts at CTC.

"I was very nice," she said. "I've put a lot of time and effort into the program and it was a nice surprise."

Stephanie Fancher, a senior in physical therapy from Villa Grove, also received a $200 award, CTC's Ted Okita Scholarship.

Fancher praised her college for the accessibility and sense of closeness there, which she said probably stemmed from its smallness in comparison to other SIUC colleges.

"It seems as though it's a really personal program," Fancher said. "Everybody there knows everyone on the faculty."

Jason Gallaher, a sophomore in aviation flight from Auburn, Wash., applied for and won the $500 Lu Ann Gatewood Memorial Scholarship.

"It makes me feel good to know that there's financial help available and recognition for students who do well academically," he said.

Grant to help police fight drunk driving

Alliance Against Intoxicated Motorists gives SIUC $500

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

Carbondale Police are AAIMing at drunk driving — especially for the next two weekends.

The Carbondale Police Department is getting a $500 grant from the Alliance Against Intoxicated Motorists to increase DUI enforcement for the upcoming Springfest and the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta weekends.

Acting Police Chief Don Strom said the next two weekends have been targeted for extra enforcement because of the potential for heavy drinking at the festivities.

"The police are sensitive to the drinking and driving that usually occurs," Strom said. "We want to take a pro-active approach to that possibility."

The department plans to use the money to hire an extra officer to work strictly to enforce DUI laws, Strom said. The officer will be hired for four extra days, the Friday and Saturday of each weekend.

AAIM Executive Director Paul Froehlich said the money is a way to make streets and highways safer.

"Additional police on patrol will arrest more alcohol-impaired drivers," he said.

Froehlich said death can result even if intoxicated people don't drive.

"(T)he majority of adult pedestrians killed in motor vehicle accidents are walking under the influence," he said.

Strom said the grant responds to the call for action to reduce alcohol-related deaths among college students by the Federal Office for Substance Abuse Prevention. The grant also complements U. S. Surgeon General Antonio C. Novello's call to stop college student binge drinking.

Froehlich said AAIM is the oldest Illinois citizen-action group against drinking and driving.

"We have a two-fold mission: To help DUI victims and prevent DUI tragedies," he said. "If we can provide help for police to nab (DUI) offenders, we're doing our job."

AAIM also is donating an identical grant to Western Illinois University for its upcoming WestFest, Froehlich said.

He was encouraged by the successfulness of the grant used in by the University of Illinois. Police used the money to set up a roadblock as a sobriety checkpoint.

"Pedestrians were cheering on the police roadblock," Froehlich said. "Police weren't seen as the enemy there."

Iraq signs accord with U.N. on refugees

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Iraq signed an accord Thursday with the United Nations to protect, feed and help return home the hundreds of thousands of refugees who fled to escape soldiers loyal to Saddam Hussein, the official Iraqi News Agency reported.

At the same time, a senior Iraqi official opposed the U.S. plan for safe havens for the refugees in northern Iraq under allied military protection, terming it interference in Iraq's internal affairs.

And the ruling Iraqi Revolutionary Command Council extended for one week beginning Friday the limited amnesty for Kurds to return to their homes. Baghdad Radio said the extension was offered to overcome communications problems caused by because rebel activity in the north and to give the refugees the chance to get home.

The refugee accord was signed by Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmed Hussein Khodaiyer and the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Sadreddin Agha Khan, who is visiting Baghdad.

The accord provides for staffing of "humanitarian centers" in Iraq by civilians from the U.N., its humanitarian agencies, the Red Cross and several other groups.

and taunting runners leading off first base are some of the nicer problems the Hill Gang can cause. Many fans bring a cooler of beer and a barbecue grill and this, mixed with the Southern Illinois' sun can cause quite a nuisance for opposing teams.

That same nuisance can turn into a big advantage for the Salukis.

"What a great asset it is to have them out there," SIUC coach Sam Riggleson said. "As a coach, I try to find ways to take the other team out of its game, but with the Hill Gang I don't have to. There isn't a better way to get to a team than to have them yelling back and forth with fans."

The Hill Gang has been around ever since the Saluki baseball team moved to Abe Martin Field in 1964, said Sports Information Director Fred Huff, who came to SIUC in 1960.

"I sit out there because it is more of the students and they get rowdier," said Erica Miller, a sophomore in administrative justice from Yorkville. "They get the Salukis psyched up and it's sort of a mind game with the other team, being right behind their dugout."

What is so unique about the Hill Gang is the fan's awareness of what is going on in the game. Often fans sit around and socialize during a baseball game, but not the Hill Gang.

Many schools claim they have the best fans, but SIUC assistant coach Ken Henderson said in all of his travels, he has never seen anything quite like the Hill Gang. Henderson is a former assistant coach at Kansas State of the Big Eight Conference and said even the biggest baseball schools don't produce knowledgeable fans like the Hill Gang.

The Salukis are hoping an overflow of Springfest goers will venture down to take in a ballgame and cheer the Dawgs to victory. The series begins 3 p.m. today with a single game. A doubleheader is scheduled for Saturday starting at 1 p.m. and another single game is slated for 1 p.m. Sunday.

Cobb started to get into powerlifting in order to put on some additional muscle size and be more competitive in higher level contests.

"I have been spending about 21/2 hours a day in the gym, and dieting very strictly with a medium-protein, high-carbohydrate diet," she said. "What helps a lot is being a food and nutrition major because I can diet properly, and not hurt my body in the process."

"I also diet day by day, according to how I look, and not what I weigh."

Cobb has been getting ready for two contests at the same time because she competed last weekend in the Central Illinois Competition, an intermediate level contest in Ottawa, which the highest places qualify to compete nationally.

She received fourth place overall, including one first-place vote from the head judge.

"The competition was really tough, and I was the youngest girl there," she said. "I was happy with my placing, though, and it was a blast."

Cobb said one big difference between that contest and the Ms. SIU is there were many more competitors, including seven in her lightweight class alone.

"Not many girls work out because of the aerobic craze, they don't know how to, and they might be intimidated by bodybuilders," she said. "They don't have much knowledge of the sport because no one has ever showed them."

Cobb said the main problem with the contest last year was a lack of judges who knew what to look for, but this year the problem probably will be fixed.

She said the best part of the contest is the drug-testing this year.

Weightlifting Club president Chris Georgantas said all competitors will be tested on a polygraph for steroid use, and the winners probably will submit to a urine test.

"We wanted to urine test everybody, but it costs $80-90 per person, and we couldn't afford it,"

Georgantas said. "It was a way to get people to compete who may have been intimidated before."

He said the men's class will have more competitors in it, about 13 total, and the low number of female entrants is unfortunate.

"It's unexplainable, it's just based on who is around at the time, and luckily not an indicator of the sport," he said. "In past years there have been as many as six or seven women competing."

Trophies will be awarded to first through third-place finishers, and best poser for men and women. Fourth and fifth places will receive medals.

The guest poser at the contest will be Jimmy Chan, winner of the 1989 Mid-State Classic.

"He is a very artistic, pro-caliber poser," Georgantas said. "People will be surprised because he represents the sport very well."

Tickets are on sale at the Student Center Ticket Office or at Shryock Auditorium. They are $2 for pre-judging, $5 for the evening show, and $6 for both.

Tracksters head back to Arkansas

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's track team hopes for a repeat performance of last week as it travels to Fayetteville, Ark., for another tough meet.

Last week the Salukis placed second to the national indoor champion Arkansas Razorbacks. Saluki coach Bill Cornell believes the team can keep improving toward the Missouri Valley Conference Outdoor Championships.

"We've been doing very well every week," Cornell said, "and I think we can continue to improve up to the tournament. I'm happy as long as that continues to happen."

Also competing in the meet are Oklahoma State and MVC newcomer Southwest Missouri State. The meet is unscored. Cornell said the Razorbacks have a reason for having the unscored invite.

"I think Arkansas' objective for the week is to try and qualify some of its athletes for the NCAA championships," Cornell said.

Cornell's thoughts are turned toward the conference championships. The success the team has had of late against nationally-ranked competition is encouraging, but there are other teams that could win it, he said.

sweep of Arkansas State, where the SIUC hitting and pitching came together at the same time for one of the few times this season. Juniors Mike Van Gilder and Sean Bergman devastated the Indians' offense, allowing only 2 runs in the doubleheader. At the same time, the Salukis' bats were shelling Arkansas States' pitchers for 10 runs in the first game and 12 runs in the second contest.

Duplicating that sweep will not come quite as easy this weekend against the Shockers.

Wichita State has beaten some of the toughest competition in the country and boasts a .343 team batting average compared to its opponents .239 average.

The Salukis will combat the Shockers by starting senior Bob Finder (1-5, 6.62 ERA) on the hill today. Senior Phil Mehringer (1-0, 2.30 ERA) will start the first game Saturday. Mehringer is coming off a stellar relief performance against Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Tuesday.

In the second contest Saturday, the Dawgs will throw junior Ryan McWilliams (3-2, 4.85 ERA). Bergman (3-4, 4.97 ERA) will work the game on Sunday.

The Wichita State hurlers own a combined 3.17 ERA, while their opponents post a whopping 8.33 ERA.

The Salukis' offense, which has included three freshmen lately partly because of injuries, will try to keep its rash of hitting success alive.

Freshmen outfielders Dan Esplin and Jason Smith and freshman second baseman Jeff Cwynar have stepped into the Saluki ranks and produced fine numbers.

Esplin continues to lead SIUC in hitting with a .345 batting average. Cwynar has played in only 19 of the Dawgs' 37 games, but posts a .341 batting average and four doubles.

Smith's main contributions have come by solidifying the outfield by chasing down nearly everything hit to center field. On the offensive side of things, Smith is hitting .271 in 21 games.

Also adding much needed offensive punch is senior outfielder Jeff Nelson. Nelson leads the Dawgs with four home runs, 13 doubles and 22 RBI, while hitting .344.
